

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY

Employees are the most valuable assets of an organisation and their safety is paramount. Employers are responsible for the health and safety of their employees while they are at work. The Employers' Liability (Compulsory Insurance) Act 1969 makes it compulsory for most businesses to hold employers' liability insurance. Employers' liability insurance enables companies to cover the costs of legal fees and any compensation paid to an employee who has been injured at work or has become ill while carrying out work duties.

Greater awareness and readily available access to legal advice and representation has resulted in employees becoming more informed regarding their rights to claim against their employer. Our employers' liability insurance is designed to address the range of exposures employers may face, whether it is an accident involving an employee slipping on a wet floor or an injury as a result of a major health and safety breach.

Exceptional insurance protection doesn't just happen – it takes creativity and client commitment. By blending comprehensive coverage with Allied World's innovation, financial strength and dedicated team of experienced professionals, we are able to offer the optimal protection for our clients. Our team of underwriters, claims managers and risk management professionals, with industry knowledge and authority to make decisions, offer an exceptional level of service to our brokers and insureds.
